The Chicago Convention.

The great theme of conversation and thought is still the national republican convention at Chicago. Thousands upon thousands are flocking together there to sympathize, deliberate, counsel and advise with the intelligent body of men that have there assembled, charged with the most important trust that has been delegated to any convention since the formation and adoption of our national constitution. Correspondents and those who have returned from the convention concur in the statement that the broad good feeling prevails; that though there is a sharp competition between the friends of the different candidates, it is tempered with the greatest good nature and the firmest determination that whoever is successful shall receive their hearty and unanimous support. Under the circumstances, we cannot look for a poor nomination, and we may rest with confidence that the nominator will be candidly and thoroughly canvassed, and that the final choice of the convention will be one that will deserve, demand and secure the unbroken suffrages of the whole republican party.

There is no little significance in this earnest and manly rivalry in conjunction with this momentous gathering. It plainly shows that the friends of each candidate, after a careful survey of the ground, are satisfied that a republican president will be elected and that it is their own particular choice should not be successful, their most zealous and undaunting efforts are pledged in support of the choice of the convention. And it is not to be disguised that our political opponents are feeling a lively interest in the deliberations and results of this convention. Their own party is disorganized, broken by discordant and heterogeneous factions, differing so widely and so evidently that all hope of reunion is destroyed. After a bitter and protracted contest, their convention could not even agree to make a nomination and adjourned, never to meet again as the delegates of a national party. What is there to make them hope it will be otherwise? The imbecile, the vicious, the stupendous and shocking corruptions of the present administration, which it is remembered was one of their own that choices are enough to make the most thorough-paced devotee of the party sick and disgusted with the very name of democracy, and they cannot wish that the country should ever again be cursed by such不堪的 administration. We expect to see the best of them this fall at work, shoulder to shoulder to elect the Chicago nomination.

The Ohio Statesman, speculating upon its city's prospects for the presidency, says:

If nominated, there is no doubt about the safety of Judge Douglas to carry a large majority of the electoral votes of the north, and if he carry all the south, it is not difficult now to say who the next president will be.

If Douglas is nominated, and if he carries a majority of the electoral votes of the north and all the south, he will doubtless be president; but if he shouldn't be nominated, and if he should, in the event of being a candidate, receive a single electoral vote north, and only a portion of the south—what then?

The Memphis Enquirer, edited by Simon Bolivar, a senator from Arkansas, published a scathing review of the action of Mr. T. B. Flanagan in the Charleston convention. Mr. F. replies in a card in the Memphis Avalanche; denies his recency to the instructions of his state, though personally he was for Douglas, and concludes thus:

"I think the public may understand the private malignity that induced the article alluded to, it is only necessary to state that that position and myself had, several years ago, a personal difficulty which led to a collision. He refused to fight, and I then posted him to the world as a coward, a liar, and a scoundrel, and from thence forward beneath my notice, or that of any other gentleman."

LEAD AND SILVER MINE AT WARREN, N. H.—We understand, says the Boston Journal, that the lead and silver mine at Warren, N. H., has passed into the hands of a company of Boston capitalists, by whom it will be more fully and doubtless successfully developed. The shaft has been sunk to the depth of one hundred feet, and the lead is increasing in richness. The lead from this mine is of a very pure quality.—The yield of silver is about $60 to the ton of ore. The mine will employ about one hundred men.

A SCENE IN THE BALTIMORE CONVENTION. While New York was changing her vote, there was a crash somewhere, and it suddenly occurred to everybody that the galleries, which were enormously loaded, were giving way. There was a tremendous rush of terrified men for the doors and windows, and for a few moments there was absolute danger. By great efforts of those who were too far from the windows to get out, and those who were in a condition, and cool enough to see that there was no danger, the panic was subdued. When it was discovered that there was no peril, the crowd stared at each other, and laughed.

The changing of votes was so tedious that it became an almost insufferable bore. It was over with at last, however, and the chairman asked that the nomination be made unanimous. Thereupon there was a yell that was called unanimous. Then the chairman arose to perform the proudest duty of his life. It was almost too big for him. But he struggled with it and triumphed, and he proclaimed that John Bell was the unanimous choice of the convention. Our Civ. Com.

THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION.

CHICAGO, May 16, 1860.

"The cry is, still they come." The people appear to be moving into Chicago, en masse. The streets, main thoroughfares, as well as others, are thronged with moving masses of republicans. They are everywhere, overrunning the hotels and private residences of the hospitable people of this city. We hear of no want of accommodations for this immense crowd. The people here have done their whole duty and have well sustained the character of the western people for energy and hospitality. Among the eastern states, Pennsylvania sends the largest delegation. They have characteristics that mark them as plainly as do those of New England or the people of the west. They are slow and honest, steady and confiding. Among the sharp politicians here nothing seems to protect them but their firmness, which is just the next thing to stubbornness. They are divided in their political preferences, not even being united on Cameron, who cannot get the whole vote of his state except as a compliment. A majority of them are quite conservative in their views, but there are a good many live republicans among them. I understand that they prefer John McLean as their candidate; but not even the weight of the influence of Pennsylvania can give him the nomination. If they should unite upon a man more acceptable to the western republicans, they might give Seward's friends some trouble. I understand that efforts have been made to bring about such a combination upon Lincoln or Wade, but Pennsylvania is slow, and in the meantime events progress fast, in this crowd of keen intellects and shrewd schemes in politics.

But, however anxious the republicans here may be to forward the prospects of their favorite candidates, they are exceedingly friendly and courteous in the many discussions which are taking place continually among them. They evidently mean to carry their differences in opinion no farther than this convention; beyond and after that they will be united upon the nominees which it shall make. There is an earnestness and a deep enthusiasm manifested by the republicans who have assembled here, which is a noticeable feature, and promises vigorous work hereafter.

Of the numbers present no correct estimate can be given, as they are never assembled at one place at one time. The Wigwam, although it holds ten thousand people, does not contain, to say the least, one-third of the number of abroad in the city.

The convention assembled at 12 o'clock today. Long before the hour of meeting the galleries and lobbies of the building were densely packed and a large eager crowd filled the side-walls and streets unable to gain admission. The various delegations marched in procession to the Wigwam, and soon the seats on the platform and the reserved space in front of the platform devoted to editors and reporters were compactly crowded. At this time, as at all others when the hall is filled, the scene is an imposing if not an exciting one. The hall will hold at least 10,000 persons, and the "sea of upturned faces" that met the gaze of David Webster in Faneuil Hall when he appeared before a general jury of his constituents to defend the first act in descending progress, finds a counterpart in the appearance of this hall daily.

SATURDAY AND NORTHERN BACKBONE.—The Mac-A-Cheek Press, speaking of the absurd practice of stiffening northern backbone, says:

Senator Wade inaugurated this absurd practice of setting up northern backbone. A short time after taking his seat in the senate, he was grossly attacked by a senator from a slave state. Wade retaliated in his peculiar style. The next day a gentleman called on the senator from Ohio, and asked the usual question touching his acquaintance of the code.

"I am here," he responded, "in a double capacity. I represent the State of Ohio, and I represent Ben. Wade. As a senator I am opposed to dueling; as Ben. Wade, I represent the code."

"I was somewhat embarrassed," continued Senator Wade, "by my position yesterday, as I have some respect for the chamber. I now take this opportunity to say what I then thought, and you will, if you please, repeat, your friend is a foul-mouthed old blackguard."

"Certainly, Senator Wade, you do not wish me to convey such a message as that?" "Most certainly I do, and I will tell you for your own benefit that this friend of yours will never notice it. I will not be asked for either retraction, explanation, or a fight."

This proved to be true. No further notice was taken of the affair. But since then senator Wade has been treated with distinguished consideration.

MORALS IN MILWAUKEE.—The Wisconsin news states a state of things not very creditable to the morals of that city. We are afraid there are other towns in Wisconsin where by a little enquiry a like state of affairs might be discovered:

Last Sunday afternoon any one walking up Prospect street, in the First ward, might have seen a sight that would have suggested to him, if he were at all morally inclined, a decided need of missionaries in this city, instead of sending them off to Timbuktu. In one place of ground there were seven men and three women hard at it planting potatoes, and on the opposite side of the street on another plot, were four or five men, equally industriously engaged in digging up the earth with shovels, preparatory to planting. A little farther on, in a large lot, were about thirty men and boys enthusiastically absorbed in a scientific game of ball. A lit further on were a couple of young pugilists squared off for a "milk" in regular Bequia boy style. While all along the lake shore were pedestrians of both sexes, idling away the Sunday hours as if there were no other temples of worship but those of nature. Talk of heathenism in Africa!

AN ABOLITIONIST WHIPPED BY A BALTIMOREAN.—A struggling fellow, passing himself off as a white man, but believed to be a negro, was soundly whipped at Kingsville, S. C., on the 6th inst., by Mr. B. Franklin Cole, from the firm of Stavins, Hartman, & Co., of Baltimore. Mr. Cole overheard Hare say that Maryland was an abolition state, in a benevolent way. He immediately gave it the lie, and administered the castigation.—Sunbeam (S.C.) Watchman.

Can any of our readers interpret the following superscription with which a witty school-boy lately directed his letter to a friend:

Wood
John
Mass.

Fearing they may not, we give the solution of the apparently senseless direction. It is John Underwood, Andover, Mass."

A well-known minister in Chelsea, Mass., was greatly surprised, some time since, at receiving a letter from a female friend at Cape Ann, containing sundry and divers female confidences, relative to her approaching marriage, and an urgent request to send immediately a "hoop skirt." The minister was completely dumbfounded. It was a strange epistle for him to receive, but there was the superscription, "Rev. —," as plain as could be. In the course of the day, however, the mystery was cleared up, and it appeared that the fair correspondent had indited two letters, one to the reverend gentleman, requesting his presence to tie the marriage knot, and the other to a female friend, enlarging on the anticipated occasion, and requesting her services in procuring that useful article, a hoop skirt. The letters had been misdirected.

TRYING THEM ALL.—Recently in Chelmsford, Mass., a wholesale hide and leather dealer advertised for a wife possessing all the necessary accomplishments and graces—lure he cared nothing for. In less than a week he had received one hundred answers. He immediately opened a correspondence with fifty accomplished females residing in the New England states, and has lately been amusing himself with visiting them in turn. He gives the damsel due notice of his intention, makes her an evening call, takes her out to ride the next morning, imparts the gratifying intelligence that she has forty-nine rivals, and leaves!—He says that he is most righteously in earnest, and the one that strikes his fancy shall be Mrs. Hide and Leather. Veily, this is a fast age.

THE UNIVERSITY.—The main building of the State University has been so far completed as to admit of occupancy. On Friday evening the halls of the literary societies were dedicated by appropriate proceedings, and yesterday afternoon the chapel was opened for service by an excellent oratorical lecture by Prof. Butler. The room was crowded with students and citizens. The lecture was able and appropriate, being designed to show christianity as worthy the attention of the scholar and calculated to develop the highest capabilities of the intellect. Regular services will be held at the chapel at 4 P. M. on Sunday.—Madison Journal.

Poor Pierce.—The proverbial ingratitudes of republicans receive a fresh illustration in the fate of Gen. Pierce at Charleston. Yet he was not all forgotten. Who ever else may talk of the ingratitude of republicans and of political parties, says the Providence Journal, we suppose that Gen. Pierce will now indulge in no cynical remarks on that subject. The affliction which was manifested for him at the first balloting in the Charleston convention must touch his heart. There had been strange and mysterious whisperings for some time in certain circles, about a secret plan for springing his nomination upon the convention, and securing his triumph in the midst of the general discord which was anticipated. It was said that there was quite a party in his favor among the shrewd and cunning government officials at Boston. That mysterious personage, the president of the Charleston convention, was said by some to be employing the vast resources of his fertile mind in behalf of the genial ex-president. The delegates at last assembled, and the name of everybody but Gen. Pierce was mentioned. Was it not possible that his friends were trying the old game of silence, in order to gain a victory by surprise? At length the ballottings were announced, and in the first list appeared the name of the New Hampshire worthy, with one faithful vote in his favor. Who was the courageous delegate who thus treasured the memory of his old and admired friend? His name should go down to posterity linked to that of his gallant candidate. We are sorry to see that, in the unequal contest, his heart failed him after the first ballot, and he left the man whose name once filled the world to pass from the notice of a national democratic convention. But let no carking rival of Gen. Pierce presume to say that his name has not been before the party, or that the memory of his achievements has perished.

The committee on credentials reported.

The resolutions of the convention were ordered published and distributed among the delegates to the national convention.

CHICAGO, May 17.

Considerable excitement this morning, and the streets are crowded. Processions were formed headed by bands of music. The Michigan and New York delegations marching together to the Wigwam.

The convention was called to order at 10 o'clock. The building was so crowded that a half hour was consumed before order was obtained.

The committee on the order of business made a report, one rule of which was that 304 votes being the whole number when all states are represented in the ratio of 4 votes by delegates at large and 2 for each congressional district, that number be required to nominate a candidate. Loud cries of no, no, no.

Mr. James of New York, presented a minority report substituting for said rule one requiring a majority of all the votes cast.

The committee on credentials reported.

Mr. Davis of Mass., moved to refer back so much of the report as related to Texas.

Mr. Wilmett of Pa., moved an amendment by including Maryland, Kentucky and Virginia, adding some remarks that were oftenly construed by southern delegates, and calling warm speeches from Palmer of Maryland, Blokey of Kentucky, and others, to which Wilmett replied.

General specifying ensued, when finally the whole report of the committee on credentials was referred back by a vote of 275 to 172.

Adjourned till 3 P. M.

Balloting is expected this afternoon. If thought that on the first ballot 304 votes will have from 160 to 180 of 448 votes cast.

A FEW WORDS.—The meeting of the Tract Society this morning was a failure. It was anticipated generally by the public that the adjourned debate of last year, on the duty of the society to recognize and expose the evil of slavery, would be resumed. As soon as the body was organized, the Rev. Mr. Woolcott of Chelmsford arose and moved a resolution to that effect. We are sorry to see that, in the unequal contest, his heart failed him after the first ballot, and he left the man whose name once filled the world to pass from the notice of a national democratic convention. But let no carking rival of Gen. Pierce presume to say that his name has not been before the party, or that the memory of his achievements has perished.

Mr. Wilmett of Pa., moved an amendment by including Maryland, Kentucky and Virginia, adding some remarks that were oftenly construed by southern delegates, and calling warm speeches from Palmer of Maryland, Blokey of Kentucky, and others, to which Wilmett replied.

General specifying ensued, when finally the whole report of the committee on credentials was referred back by a vote of 275 to 172.

Adjourned till 3 P. M.

Balloting is expected this afternoon. If thought that on the first ballot 304 votes will have from 160

RATIFICATION MEETING!

Republicans of Rock County Attend!

OPENING OF THE CAMPAIGN!

The Republicans of Rock county are invited to assemble at:

Janesville, Tuesday, May 22d, to ratify the nominations of the Chicago National Republican Convention.

Eminent speakers are expected to be present from the convention.

By order of Central County Committee.

The "WEATHER" is still provokingly dry and pleasant. Field crops are not yet suffering much for rain, but gardens, newly transplanted fruit trees, flowers, &c., can't stand it much longer.

We have not had a respectable rain for about a year, and our fervent prayer now is for one of those drizzling, long continued and unpleasant rains which two years ago we were wont to deprecate. On a good time to transplant early cabbages, turnips and other garden sauce generally. Let the dews and the rains descend upon our young pear, apple, cherry, crab and plum trees; upon our soft and hard maples; upon our bass wood, our iron wood, and our evergreens; upon our young lilac bushes and our snow balls; upon our thorn apple shrubs and our grape vines, our strawberry beds, our rose bushes, our snow drops, our shooting stars and other flowers too numerous to mention; and they shall spring up and spread themselves and bless and glorify our vision and olfactory by their rich beauty and perfume.

The Chicago Convention.

The great theme of conversation and of thought is still the national republican convention at Chicago. Thousands upon thousands are flocking together there to sympathize, deliberate, counsel and advise with the intelligent body of men that have there assembled, charged with the most important trust that has been delegated to any convention since the formation and adoption of our national constitution. Correspondents and those who have returned from the convention concur in the statement that the utmost good feeling prevails; that though there is a sharp competition between the friends of the different candidates, it is tempered with the greatest good nature and the firmest determination that whoever is successful shall receive their hearty and unanimous support. Under the circumstances, we cannot look for a poor nomination, and we may rest with confidence that the matter will be candidly and thoroughly canvassed, and that the final choice of the convention will be one that will deserve, demand and secure the unbroken suffrages of the whole republican party.

There is no little significance in this earnest and manly rivalry in conjunction with this magnanimous deference. It plainly shows that the friends of each candidate, after a careful survey of the ground, are satisfied that a republican president will be elected and that if their own particular choice should not be successful, their most zealous and unfaltering efforts are pledged in support of the choice of the convention. And it is not to be disguised that our political opponents are feeling a lively interest in the deliberations and results of this convention. Their own party is disorganized, broken to fragments by discordant and heterogeneous factions, differing so widely and so radically that all hope of a re-union is destroyed. After a bitter and protracted contest, their convention could not even agree to make a nomination and adjourned, never to meet again as the delegates of a national party. What is there to make them hope it will be otherwise? The imbecility, the vices, the stupendous and shocking corruptions of the present administration, which it is remembered was one of their own first choice, are enough to awake the most thorough-paced devotee of the party sick and disgusted with the very name of democracy, and they cannot wish that the country should ever again be cursed by such another administration. We expect to see the best of them this fall at work, shoulder to shoulder to elect the Chicago nominee.

The Ohio Statesman, speculating upon its favorite's prospects for the presidency, says:

If nominated, there is no doubt about the ability of Judge Douglas to carry a large majority of the electoral votes of the north, and if he carry all the south, it is not difficult now to say who the next president will be.

If Douglas is nominated, and if he carries a majority of the electoral votes of the north and all the south, he will doubtless be president; but if he shouldn't be nominated, and if he shouldn't, in the event of being a candidate, receive a single electoral vote north, and only a portion of the south — what then?

The Memphis Enquirer, edited by Solon Borland, once a senator from Arkansas, published a scathing review of the action of Mr. T. B. Flannery in the Charleston convention. Mr. F. replies in a card in the Memphis Avalanche; denies his recreancy to the instructions of his state, though personally he was for Douglas, and concludes thus:

"That the public may understand the private malignity that induced the article alluded to, it is only necessary to state that that gentleman and myself had, several years ago, a personal difficulty which led to a challenge. He refused to fight, and I then posted him to the world as a coward, a liar, and a scoundrel, and from thence forward beneath my notice, or that of any other gentleman."

LEAD AND SILVER MINE AT WARREN, N. H. — We understand, says the Boston Journal, that the lead and silver mine at Warren, N. H., has passed into the hands of a company of Boston capitalists, by whom it will be more fully and doubtless successfully developed. The shaft has been sunk to the depth of one hundred feet, and the lead is increasing in richness. The lead from this mine is of a very pure quality. The yield of silver is about $60 to the ton of ore. The mine will employ about one hundred men.

A SCENE IN THE BALTIMORE CONVENTION. While New York was changing her vote, there was a crash somewhere, and it suddenly occurred to everybody that the galleries, which were enormously loaded, were giving way. There was a tremendous rush of terrified men for the doors and windows, and for a few moments there was absolute danger. By great efforts of those who were far from the windows to get out, and those who were in a condition, and cool enough to see that there was no danger, the panic was subdued. When it was discovered that there was no peril, the crowd stared at each other, and laughed.

The change of votes was so tedious that it became almost insufferable here. It was over with at last, however, and the chairman asked that the nomination be made unanimous. Thereupon there was a yell that was called unanimous. Then the chairman arose to perform the proudest duty of his life. It was almost too big for him. But he struggled with it and triumphed, and he proclaimed that John Bell was the unanimous choice of the convention.—Cir. Com.

THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION.

CHICAGO, May 16, 1860.
"The cry is still there come!" The people appear to be moving into Chicago, en masse. The streets, main thoroughfares, as well as others, are thronged with moving masses of republicans. They are everywhere, over-running the hotels and private residences of the hospitable people of this city. We hear of no want of accommodations for this immense crowd. The people here have done their whole duty and have well sustained the character of the western people for energy and hospitality. Among the eastern states, Pennsylvania sends the largest delegation. They have characteristics that mark them as plainly as do those of New England or the people of the west. They are slow and honest, steady and confiding. Among the sharp politicians here nothing seems to protect them but their firmness, which is just the next thing to stubbornness. They are divided in their political preferences, not even being united on Cameron, who cannot get the whole vote of his state except as a compliment. A majority of them are quite conservative in their views, but there are a good many live republicans among them. I understand that they prefer John McLean as their candidate; but not even the weight of the influence of Pennsylvania can give him the nomination. If they should unite upon a man more acceptable to the western republicans, they might give Seward's friends some trouble. I understand that efforts have been made to bring about such a combination upon Lincoln or Wade, but Pennsylvania is slow, and in the meantime events progress fast, in this crowd of keen intellects and shrewd schemers in politics.

But, however anxious the republicans may be to forward the prospects of their favorite candidates, they are exceedingly friendly and courteous in the many discussions which are taking place continually among them. They evidently mean to carry their differences in opinion no farther than this convention; beyond and after that they will be united upon the nominees which it shall make. There is an earnestness and a deep enthusiasm manifested by the republicans who have assembled here, which is a noticeable feature, and promises vigorous work hereafter.

The numbers present no correct estimate can be given, as they are never assembled at one place at one time. The Wigwam, although it holds ten thousand people, does not contain, to say the least, one-third of the numbers from abroad in the city. The convention assembled at 12 o'clock today. Long before the hour of meeting the galleries and lobbies of the building were densely packed and a large eager crowd filled the side-walks and streets unable to gain admission. The various delegations marched in procession to the Wigwam, and soon the seats on the platform and the reserved space in front of the platform devoted to editors and reporters were compactly crowded. At this time, as at all others when the hall is filled, the scene is an imposing if not an exciting one. The hall will hold at least 10,000 persons, and the "sea of upturned faces" that met the gaze of Daniel Webster in Faneuil Hall when he appeared before a general jury of constituents to defend the first act in descending progress, finds a counterpart in the appearance of this hall daily.

Gov. Morgan, of New York, as chairman of the national committee, called the convention to order, and a temporary organization was perfected, the details of which have undoubtedly been received by telegraph before this letter was commenced.

The convention got a little loose on the question of adjournment, as connected with the committee on resolutions prior to the permanent organization. While in a state partaking somewhat of distraction, Joshua R. Giddings, the Nestor of the convention, brought it to its bearings with steady hand, and an adjournment to 5 o'clock in the afternoon was carried.

On re-assembling, the permanent organization was effected by the election of the following officers:

PRESIDENT,

California, A. A. Sargent.

Connecticut, C. F. Cleveland.

Three good, because brief and patriotic speeches were made during the day. One letters had been misdirected.

by Gov. Morgan after calling the convention to order; one by Mr. Wilmot, on taking the chair temporarily, and the other by Mr. Ashmun on assuming the duties of a permanent presiding officer.

Six slave states are represented, and when the name of each was announced, as represented on the several committees, it was greeted with enthusiastic cheers. The delegates from these states are tried men, and they are here because they are tried men. If there is a timid or compromising spirit in the convention, it exists not among them. They fully believe in the "irrepressible conflict," and are not afraid to express their belief. All honor to such glorious men and true representatives.

The accommodations for reporters and editors were supposed to be ample, but if they had been largely increased, they would still have been sadly deficient for the convenience of those who are here in the capacity of correspondents or reporters. The Journal of this afternoon reports over two hundred additional names registered, and a large number are yet unpublished. We hear that five hundred applications for tickets had been made to the committee prior to the assembling of the convention.

To-morrow morning the active work of the convention will commence. The committee on resolutions will report, and the balloting probably follow and possibly a nomination will be made before to-morrow evening. We confidently anticipate such a nomination as republicans everywhere can confidently support.

MISFORTUNES IN THE WOOLN MANUFACTURE.—Mr. Rice of Massachusetts, in his speech on the tariff, stated the following facts: "The Bay State Mills of Massachusetts, which cost over $2,000,000, were sold for $500,000. The Middlesex Mills, fifty sets machinery, cost 1,000,000, were capitalized for $200,000. The Salisbury Mills, fifty sets machinery, cost over $1,000,000, sold for $225,000. The New England Worsted Company failed to pay its debts in full, and its property was an entire loss to the stockholders. The Hollister Mills, near Utica, N. Y., cost near $150,000, sold for about $40,000; and so on with mills at Waterford, N. Y., Dexter, Me., Burlington, Vt., and at other places. In fact, an amount equal to the whole original investment in woolen mills has already been sunk in the business. During the same period, also, under the tariff of 1846, the manufacture of broadcloth in this country was suspended, and the last balloting was announced, and in the first

SENATOR WADE AND NORTHERN BACKBONE.—The Mac-a-Cheek Press, speaking of the absurd practice of stigmatizing northern backbones, says:

Senator Wade inaugurated this absurd practice of setting up northern backbone. A short time after taking his seat in the senate, he was grossly attacked by a senator from a slave state. Wade retorted in his peculiar style. The next day a gentleman called on the senator from Ohio, and asked the usual question touching his acknowledgment of the code.

"I am here," he responded, "in a double capacity. I represent the State of Ohio, and I represent Ben. Wade. As a senator I am opposed to dueling; as Ben. Wade, I recognize the code."

"My friend feels aggrieved," said the gentleman, "at what you said in the senate yesterday, and will ask for satisfaction on an apology."

"I was somewhat embarrassed," continued Senator Wade, "by my position yesterday, as I have some respect for the chamber. I now take this opportunity to say that I then thought, and you will, if you please, repeat it, your friend is a foul-mouthed old blackguard."

"Certainly, Senator Wade, as do not wish me to convey such a message as that?"

"Most certainly I do, and I will tell you for your own benefit that this friend of yours will never notice it. I will not be asked for either retraction, explanation, or fight."

This proved to be true. No further notice was taken of the affair. But since then Senator Wade has been treated with distinguished consideration.

MORALS IN MILWAUKEE.—The Wisconsin this notices a state of things not very creditable to the morals of that city. We are afraid there are other towns in Wisconsin where by a little enquiry a like state of affairs might be discovered:

Last Sunday afternoon any one walking up Prospect street, in the First ward, might have seen a sight that would have suggested to him, if he were at all morally inclined, a decided need of missionaries in this city; instead of sending them off to Tibbetts or the Feejee Islands. In one plot of ground there were seven men and three women hard at it, planting potatoes, and on the opposite side of the street on another plot, were four or five men, equally industriously engaged in digging up the earth with shovels, preparatory to planting. A little further on, in a large lot, were about thirty men and boys enthusiastically absorbed in a scientific game of ball. A little further on were a couple of young pugilists squared off for a "mild" regular Beanie Boy style. While all along the lake shore were pedestrians of both sexes, idling away the Sunday hours as if there were no other temples of worship but those of nature!

Talk of heathenism in Africa!

AN ANTI-SLAVERY WHIPPED BY A BALTIMOREAN.—A straggling fellow, passing himself off as a white man, but believed to be a free negro, was soundly whipped at Kingsville, S. C., on the 6th inst., by Mr. Franklin Cole, from the firm of Straus, Hartman, & Hollin & Co., of Baltimore. Mr. Cole overheard Hare say that Maryland was an abolition state, in a boastful way. He immediately gave it the lie, and administered the castigation.—Advertiser (S.C.) Watchman.

Can any of our readers interpret the following superscription with which a witty school-boy lately directed his letter to a friend:

Wood
John
Mass.

Fearing they may not, we give the solution of the apparently senseless direction: It is "John Underwood, Andover, Mass."

A well-known minister in Chelsea, Mass., was greatly surprised, some time since, at receiving a letter from a female friend at Cape Ann, containing sundry and diverse confidences, relative to her approaching marriage, and an urgent request to send immediately a "hoop skirt." The minister was completely dumbfounded. It was a strange epistle for him to receive, but there was the superscription, "Rev. —," as plain as could be. In the course of the day, however, the mystery was cleared up, and it appeared that the fair correspondent had indicated two letters, one to the reverend gentleman, requesting his presence to tie the marriage knot, and the other to a female friend, enlarging on the anticipated occasion, her efforts to overthrow the tempter might eventually prove successful.

It is an old adage that "liars have short memories." For years we have been surprised with the doctrine that slavery improves the African — that it Christianizes him — civilizes him, and makes him every way a more useful and perfect being. Now, a leading slaveholder in the Charleston convention declares that he has many slaves; and that those recently imported are the most valuable hands on his plantation. They are, said he, "the nobles Romans of the world." Verily the slave power is the "great" of modern times.—Albany Journal.

TRYING THEM ALL.—Recently in Chelsea, Mass., a wholesale hide and leather dealer advertised for a wife possessing all the necessary accomplishments and graces — lucre he cared nothing for. In less than a week he had received one hundred answers. He immediately opened a correspondence with fifty accomplished females residing in the New England states, and has lately been amusing himself with visiting them in turn. He gives the damsel due notice of his intention, makes her an evening call, takes her out to ride the next morning, imparts the gratifying intelligence that she has forty-nine rivals, and leaves! He says that he is most righteously in earnest, and the one

RATIFICATION MEETING!

Republicans of Rock County Attend!

OPENING OF THE CAMPAIGN!

The Republicans of Rock county are invited to assemble at

Janesville, Tuesday, May 22d, to ratify the nominations of the Chicago National Republican Convention.

Eminent speakers are expected to be present from the convention.

By order of Central County Committee.

The "WEATHER" is still provokingly dry and pleasant. Field crops are not yet suffering much for rain, but gardens, newly transplanted fruit trees, shrubbery, flowers, &c., can't stand it much longer.

We have not had a respectable rain for about a year, and our fervent prayer now is for one of those drizzling, long continued and unpleasant rains which two years ago we were wont to deprecate. Oh for a good time to transplant early cabbages, tomatoes and other garden sauce generally. Let the dews and the rains descend upon our young pear, apple, cherry, crab and plum trees; upon our soft and hard maples; upon our bass wood, our iron wood, and our evergreens; upon our young lilac bushes and our snow balls; upon our thorn apple shrubs and our grape vines, our strawberry beds, our rose bushes, our snow drops, our shooting stars and other flowers too numerous to mention; and they shall spring up and spread themselves and bless and gratify our vision and olfactory by their rich beauty and perfume.

We called at J. Kimball's Auction Room this morning, and found that he had a nice lot of furniture on hand, which he is bound to sell on Saturday next to the highest bidders. We advise all in want of any article of household furniture to give him a call and examine his stock, and be sure to be on hand at one o'clock p.m. of Saturday next, as the goods must be sold with cut reserve.

A NEW TERM IN MUSIC.—We overheard three boys to-day making sounds undoubtedly intended for music. After they had held to one strain as breath lasted, the younger of them expressed his approbation by saying, "Gosh, wasn't that a jibe o' noises!"

LIFE ILLUSTRATIONS.—Not a day passes but we may see in the busting throng some practical illustrations of the changes consequent upon a life of dissipation. Every period of life, from youth to old age, is represented in this list of suicides. Young men with noble mein and clear intellect, middle age with sound judgment and aspiring to fame and honor, old men trembling with age, whose heads are white with the frosts of many a winter—all these swell the ranks of this mighty tide of falling humanity. That horrid vision which usually closes the drama of such a life, checks not the downward course of those who follow, but like a blind man, in whose path lies the precipice, rush on to destruction.

A man in good standing in community, beloved by his family and loving in return, falls as though shot by a musket ball. Another, of good business qualifications, falls as though struck by the gibbet; another, whose whole moral sensibilities have long been steeped and soaked to rotteness, gives way to the imagined inflictions of his enemies and drowns himself. We might go on and present actors of this drama, but why, when every day is but an act in the scene. Then, young man, break from the thrall which is binding you to a body of living death. You, of middle age, turn from the enchantress before her wiles and seductive promises leave you to an awakening more grim, more dreadful than death itself. Old man, while the lamp yet dimly burns save those whitened locks and trembling limbs for a better purpose than filling a drunkard's grave.

SPLITTING THE DIFFERENCE.—A nice young gentleman not a thousand miles from here, says the Sandeville Telegraph, after a long and assiduous courtship, found himself betrothed to a pretty girl, the very pink of modesty. One night he was about to take his departure, and after lingering at the door for some time in a fit of anxiety, he declared and protested to Miss Nancy that he couldn't and wouldn't leave her until she permitted him to kiss her. Of course Miss Nancy blushed beautifully red, and protested that she couldn't do that. She had never done such a thing, and never would until she was married—so there he had it.

The alteration and debate became deep and exciting, until the betrothed buffed outright, and declared if he couldn't kiss her he wouldn't have her, and was marching off. She watched him to the gate, and saw that the "fat was in the fire" unless something was done.

"Come back," she said coaxingly, "I'll split the difference with you—you may squeeze my hand!"

THE TEA PLANT.—The progress of the experiment in acclimating the tea plant, so far as heard from, is favorable, and there is reason to believe that it can be grown in the open air, south of the north line of North Carolina and Tennessee. Eighteen thousand plants have been sent into this southern region, and eight thousand more have been distributed to persons in the northern states, as objects of curiosity.

Never mind other people of personal deformity, or of the relatives who have disgraced them,

BEAD THIS, BOYS.—A strong writer administers a wholesome dose to boys on smoking and chewing, assuring them that tobacco has ruined thousands of boys—inducing a dangerous precocity, developing the passions, softening and weakening the bones, and greatly injuring the spinal marrow, the brain and the whole nervous fluid. A boy who early and frequently smokes, or in any way uses large quantities of tobacco, never is known to make a man of much energy of character, and generally lacks physical and muscular, as well as mental energy.

Major W. D. Neely, one of the oldest settlers of Iowa, and for some time past a deputy United States marshal, a democrat of the old school, has just resigned his office, and declared his purpose to no longer act with the democratic party.

John A. Lynch, state's attorney for Frederick's county, Md., has given an opinion that the New York Tribune is an incendiary publication, and that every postmaster in that county who delivers it is subject to an indictment.

LIFE INSURANCE.—Those desiring this safest and cheapest protection for their families, can secure it in our Wisconsin company. It has already become, in reality, a state institution, having agents and patrons among the best business men in all the principal towns in the state. It is no longer a matter of doubt that life insurance can be conducted as well in Wisconsin as in Connecticut or any other eastern state.

While duty demands that men should insure their lives, it also demands that they should keep their money at investment at home. Confidence that our success has been more than equal to that of the most "unprecedented" we would cordially invite all our citizens to call at the office, south-west corner of Main and Wisconsin streets, and examine for themselves.

S. DAGEFF, President.
A. W. MORSE, Fisher & Dageff, produce dealers, and Geo. S. Dodge will receive applications for insurance in this house company, and will also be happy to give information as to the condition thereof, to any one desirous of being informed, in Janesville.
